

Hi all ...

Posted by carole mitchell - 11 Feb 2012 14:22

---

Im new to the site and in need of advice ...Do any of you recommend a knowledgeable and tenacious consultant DR who is not afraid of diagnosing Arachnoiditis here in the noeth west of uk or indeed any where in the uk that the NHS will allow me to see >(

Sick of beingTALKED to not listened to.....how can a consultant make a diagnosis with out xamining u??? &quot; and sorry havent seen ur MRI arghhhh...

=====

Re: Hi all ...

Posted by helen - 20 Mar 2012 18:50

---

Dear Doc Sarah

I want to wish you all the best for your retirement, but at the same time am really sad you're leaving us. You have worked so hard and made a massive contribution to this and many other organisations - you will be greatly missed.

Take care Helen

=====

Re: Hi all ...

Posted by carole mitchell - 18 Apr 2012 11:53

---

Thankz OH.. being sent from pillar to post..even been sent for my ears tested arghhh lol...

=====

Re: Hi all ...

Posted by carole mitchell - 18 Apr 2012 11:54

---

☺
just my luck lol...anyway anyone suffering with this condition will understand and wish u well x

=====

Re: Hi all ...

Posted by Kim - 18 Apr 2012 22:00

---

Hi Helen

DocSarah has retired from working but not from us. She is quite ill at the moment and has come off line for a while..

The Doc won't me leaving us for long!

Love

Kim

=====

Re: Hi all ...

Posted by Kim - 18 Apr 2012 22:14

---

Hi Kevin

DocSarah has not left our group. She is quite ill since lasr February and has come down off line until she can learn to cope with this latest challenge. We will have her back soon but no pressure from me this time

She needs all our love and I will pass this to her husband. After nearly 15 years, I am really missing her but can be patient because I understand from time to time we all need a little space.

Thank you as always Kevin

Love Kim

=====

Re: Hi all ...

Posted by shelaghwm123 - 30 Sep 2012 08:42

---

Hello Carol - I am new to this today. I have had Arachnoiditis sytoms for over 3o years now. It gets worse as I age and I hate it!!! I am an outgoing, wanting to do things sort of person. Bill, my husband and I travel a lot (painfully) and he is a treasure. I used to travel alone and visit my family in America and Canada but now need support. I live in the NorthEast in village called Corbridge so not far from you. What sytoms do you have? Mine started when I had the Myodil dye injected in my spine when having a Mylogram at the Newcastle General Hospital. I have had one doctor who would talk to me about this condition. He is no longer around! My doctor is lovely but he prefers to tell me I suffer from depression and through depression have chronic pain. It is a vicious circle. He is so wrong and I am at my wits end and just want an answer so that I can get on with my life. Sx

=====