

Kim missing again

Posted by Kim - 29 Feb 2008 17:08

Here we go again, more excuses. Ok so the computer had hiccoughs as well but I have got/had a NEW 'itis' and guess what when asked my the eye specialist why this new 'itis' I was told immediately that it was because of my arachnoiditis and vasculitis. How's that? 😞

I have epscleritis (hope I spelt that right) it's an inflammation of the whites of your eyeballs. Painful, light sensitive and can't read very well

Just went to see if size worked - it didn't. Anyway, it just another 'because it can' syndrome:(

Lasts about 1-2 weeks and you need the dreaded steroid drops.

Anyone else come across this new 'itis'? 😞

Bye for now

Kim
