

I am Back

Posted by Kim - 10 Feb 2009 17:41

Well I think I am. It has been a long time since I felt well enough to post anything but Ann has kept me up to date. The lovely Jamie has improved my access again by putting a big magnifying glass on the screen so I can at least see the line I am typing.

I have got lots of new items to post on the website from DocSarah. An updated biog, and a New Year letter to you all. There is also an article on Sleep Problems - a bit dry and I am afraid I have been away too long, she has gone into Doctor speak again: A lot of technical stuff and all referenced. There is a small bit on Pregabalin, DocSarah is interested in and an update on the questionnaire and parts two and three to come. So she has been busy while I have been ill. (Boring BTW - once they have eliminated the Big C it has got to be autoimmune so get on with it.

Give me another week and I should have the front page updated with lots of new stuff,

Bye for now

Kim

=====