

CHEST WALL

Posted by helen - 22 Jun 2009 14:28

I am experiencing very strong muscle cramps of the chest wall, which literally pull from my neck down across the front and back. My shoulders are already very crunchy and my throat is also being pulled! It is becoming so distressing I don't know what to do - the spasms last for hours. I feel very anxious and wonder if anyone else is going through the same thing?

Get yourself medical help NOW. Even if it is a false alarm much better than the consequences. We can deal with that later and can explain why. But please do it now
