CURRENT POSTS:

Specialty Doctor in Psychiatry: Older Adults. Callington Road Hospital, Brislington, Bristol. December 2007- present

Work with both functional and organic cases, including ward work, domiciliary visits, liaison Psychiatry assessments at local general hospitals. Also teaching junior staff and medical students.

I have recently given a number of talks to colleagues, GPs and District Nurses on chronic pain in general, pain in the elderly and pain in dementia.

Pain and dementia I am currently involved with a multi-agency project (with Napp and colleagues from Bristol Royal Infirmary, Frenchay Hospital and Bristol PCT) improving pain assessment and management in residential care settings for patients with dementia, and have designed a pain tool for this purpose which is being piloted locally. We have run a number of study days for residential home staff and are going to audit any change in practice. The project has sparked interest from colleagues in Swindon.

Declaration of interest: Napp Pharmaceuticals provided an educational grant for the project; I receive honoraria for talks, meetings etc. Neither I nor any member of my family have shares in any Pharmaceutical companies.

Visiting lecturer Cardiff University: teaching on MSc courses, principally in Pain Management; contributing educational material to the affiliated website on subjects such as Substance Misuse, Suicidal Ideation and Depression.

RESEARCH:

2004-2007 with Arthritis Care on the effectiveness of a brief lay-led education programme. Poster presentation at British Society of Rheumatologists meeting 24th April 2008.

2008/09 Clinical Trials Unit at Royal National Hospital for Rheumatic Diseases (Bath): involved in trials for treatment of Psoriatic nail conditions and Fibromyalgia.

I am a member of the Steering Committee of the Pain in Older Adults Special Interest Group (SIG) of the British Pain Society. We are aiming to improve awareness, assessment and management of pain in dementia, particularly for patients in residential care.

I have set up an international database on Adhesive Arachnoiditis and have launched a web-based survey. I have previously run 3 surveys on arachnoiditis, in 1999, 2000 and 2001.

I am liaising with Prof. Jan Warnke, a neurosurgeon in Germany, to try to set up research into Arachnoiditis.

PUBLICATIONS

Introductory chapter in "Is anybody listening?" Dr Wendy Anderson, 2005, ASAMS, New Zealand.

Chapter on prognosis of Adhesive Arachnoiditis in "Arachnoiditis: The Evidence Revealed" J Antonio Aldrete, 2010 Editorial Alfil , Mexico

Numerous internet articles, originally written for a number of different support groups. Most continue to be available at www.theaword.org a support group website for patients with Arachnoiditis, including a 300+ page article on The Adhesive Arachnoiditis Syndrome written in 2003. Some of my articles have been translated into French and Romanian and some are currently being translated into Norwegian.

Other websites using my articles include ASAMS <http://www.arachnoiditis.info/>
CESSG (Cauda Equina Syndrome Support Group) <http://www.caudaequina.org/>

I have also made contributions in the past to websites such as The Burton Report (www.theburtonreport.com) run by Dr Charles Burton, director of the Institute of Low Back and Neck Care, Minneapolis and Rotorua Pain Specialists (<http://www.painspecialists.co.nz/>) run by Dr Stefan Neff, Consultant Anaesthetist (who worked with me in Plymouth in 2006).

MEDICOLEGAL WORK:

I have been involved with a number of cases both in the UK and abroad including cases involving arachnoiditis for which I have acted as an expert witness. I have prepared medicolegal reports for patients with chronic pain litigation or insurance issues.

VOLUNTARY SECTOR WORK:

Patron of various support groups (UK, USA, New Zealand, France) for patients with adhesive arachnoiditis since 1998. I have written numerous articles for these groups on aspects of chronic pain in general, neuropathic pain and arachnoiditis in particular and given talks to the group in the UK. I have taken part in radio and TV discussions and corresponded with politicians (including a meeting at Department of Health).

I am a committee member of the South-West Regional Arthritis Care Committee. I give talks to local branches of Arthritis Care. I also gave a talk to GPs at a practice near Belfast on behalf of Arthritis Care Northern Ireland in February 2009.

I recently gave 2 talks at the first International Congress on Tarlov Cysts and Arachnoiditis (run by the support group AARMOR) in France in July 2010: one on chronic pain, one on Prognosis in Arachnoiditis.
